Coyote Music and Other Humorous Tales of the Early West

Jul 31 2022 In this lighthearted and charming collection of stories, popular historian Grant MacEwan captures the homespun humour, the outrageous antics, and the colourful characters that brought laughter and joy into the often difficult lives of the early pioneers. Among these pages you will meet the likes of: Pegleg Paul, king of woodenleg mirth and permanent fixture at the Fleet Livery's Hot Stove Liars' League; and Tom Sukanen, inventor and mechanical genius, obsessed with the singlehanded construction of a 43-foot, 15-tonne seaworthy ship on the banks of the South Saskatchewan River.

Adventure Stories of Funny

Tales Oct 02 2022 A tale is a fictional story that is usually told among a particular population. Funny tales are supposed to be just about having fun. These, are often short, talk about sequenced events, and may conclude a moral at the end. In our regular scheduled life, we don't have any fun or humorous moments.

However, there are occasions that are totally right to show our funny side. As we know, laughter is the best medicine, and what is a better way to make others laugh than a few funny tales. Funny Tales under the Real Kids Reading Adventure Series presents a unique collection of funny tales with multicolored illustrations. A must for all lovers of tales!

Librarian Tales Jan 01 2020 Published in cooperation with the American Library Association, an insider's look at one of the most prevalent, yet commonly misunderstood institutions! Here is the good, the bad, and the ugly of librarian William Ottens's experience working behind service desks and in the stacks of public libraries, most recently at the Lawrence Public Library in Kansas. In Librarian Tales, published in cooperation with the American Library Association, readers will learn about strange things librarians have found in book drops, weird and obscure reference questions, the stress of tax season, phrases your local librarians never want to hear, stories unique to children's librarians, and more. Ottens uncovers common pet peeves among his colleagues, addresses misguided assumptions and stereotypes, and shares several hilarious stories along the way. This book is must reading for any librarian, or anyone who loves books and libraries, though non-library folks will also laugh and cry (from laughing) while reading this lighthearted analysis of your local community pillar, the library. The Ten-thousand-dollar Arm, and Other Tales of the Big League Apr 15 2021 Funny Stories of Our Times and Their Morals Aug 27 2019 My late dad, the late Erastus Mwololo, was a great story teller. Growing up with my brothers, dad shared some of the funniest stories that I had ever heard as a kid. He shared most of these stories either before we went to bed at night or before the fireplace with other family members and kids in my rural village (that's country). Our eyes were wide open and focused giving him our undivided attention as he shared one of his many bedtime stories with us. I grew up enjoying listening to these funny short stories and that is why I decided to write this book. None of these stories are my dad's. They are all mine but I would like to dedicate these stories to his legacy of storytelling as a dad. Most of his stories had very important moral lessons in them that helped me and my younger brothers to view life differently. Do you have a dad that is a story teller? You are in good company. Are you a dad that wants to get into story-telling? You too are in the right place. Most of the stories I share are fictitious and are staged in the wild parts of Africa where we have an abundance of wild animals. I enjoy watching wild animals in their wild on National Geographic channel Wild. I have been to some of these beautiful and amazing wild animal reserves and have seen these animals out there in their kingdom. You will find these short stories funny but they are important lessons to learn from them right from our homes, workplaces and places that we interact more often. Put yourself in the place of these animals and you realize that life happens wherever we are. I am in no way trying to advertise a long trip or 'Safari' to Africa but I sure hope that some of you who happen to read this book will someday make that dream trip to Africa to witness the wild animals in their wild. Enjoy the journey with me. Laugh if you have to and share the stories with your family, children, workmates, village and community. Thank you,

Bad Teacher Jun 05 2020

We can all recall a little rule bending in our schooldays - the Geography teacher who preferred to talk football than fold mountains; the sixth form head who let out the odd swear word. But pity the poor students who encountered the educators in this book. This hilarious exposé of life inside a modern-day classroom covers a host of teacher tardiness, truanting and tellings-off, including: The role-play loving maths teacher who used the quiet time afforded during pupil tests to practice his swordplay for his forthcoming historical reenactment weekender. The bitter art teacher who, during the midst of his divorce from his third wife, cracked open a can of beer and asked his students why women are 'hardwired to be soul-sucking, money-grabbing b*es'. Covering all subjects from primary school to college, this assembly of bloopers will leave you amused and worried for our schoolchildren - all at the same time!

Oh No! We're Gonna Die Too

Nov 30 2019 Oh No! We're Gonna Die Too came about due to the popularity of Bob's first book Oh No! We're Gonna Die. That book was mostly about the author's misadventures in Alaska. Many of his friends and associates approached him after reading the book and told him their stories which were very similar to his. He collected those stories and with a few details filled in and some observations by Bob, compiled them into the second book. This book is also written in a humorous fashion, but again conveys the apprehension, excitement and relief involved in life threatening adventures. This book shows how a relatively small mistake can quickly put one's life at risk in the Alaska wilderness. It also takes the reader on adventures throughout Alaska with a whole new cast of characters who continue the tradition of questionable judgment and bad luck. You will experience airplane crashes, wild critters trying to eat folks, extreme weather, malfunctioning equipment, sinking boats and many other challenges. These stories give the reader a personal look at how many Alaskans live, recreate and somehow survive. It is doubtful many of them would have survived if it weren't for pure luck. As one can see from these stories, there is not a lot of clear thinking or intelligence involved in most of the stories, but there is an ample amount of excitement. Please enjoy your trip with us through our Alaska misadventures

Nothing Special Sep 28 2019 This account of two siblings, one with Down syndrome, growing up in 1970s Connecticut is "rich in character, humor, hard-earned insights, and love" (Rachel Simon, author of Riding the Bus with My Sister). Nothing Special is a disarmingly candid tale of two sisters growing up in the 1970s in rural Connecticut. Older sister Chris, who has Down syndrome, is an extrovert with a knack for getting what she wants, while the author, her younger, typically developing sister, shoulders the burdens and grief of her parents, especially their father's alcoholism. Dianne Bilyak details wrestling with their mixed emotions in vignettes that range from heartrending to laugh-out-loud funny, including anecdotes about Chris's habit of faux-smoking Popsicle sticks or partying through the night with her invisible friends. Poet and disability advocate Bilyak strikes a rare balance between poignant and hilarious as she paints a compassionate and critical real-world picture of their lives. They struggle, separately and together, with the tension between dependence and independence, the complexities of giving versus receiving, the pressure to live as others expect, and in the end, the wonderful liberation of self-acceptance. “With charming specificity and hilarity, Bilyak writes frankly about her own identity, and that of her sister’s, comparing her own self-consciousness with her sister’s striking lack thereof . . . Bilyak hits home something that we so badly need to hear right now: that people with disabilities are not a monolith, and that there is no perfect way to love or be loved by them.” —Bekah Brunstetter, writer and producer for NBC’s This is Us

Narcissists are in the news

(and they love it!), but what does it mean to grow up with one? Drake takes us into the world of his narcissistic mother, where an escaping dog leads to a conspiracy, where one should be grateful for a folding chair at Christmas, and where one woman with the reflexes of a ninja and an unrivaled intelligence matches wits with the all-powerful and all-knowing The Man. There are also pictures of cute cats.
