Electronic Marketing Dec 17 2021 There is no doubt that electronic marketing has contributed positively in the life of modern societies, mainly the consuming societies. It allowed purchasing of materials cheaply without any limit, and without any restrictions. It also gave the chance to make a free selection and comparison between the prices of goods at the electronic department stores throughout the Internet. All such facilities are given to the consumers in a very short time without causing them to leave their office or home. In addition, the Electronic Marketing has exterminated the monopoly of goods and materials, all such acts of course are for the consumer's benefit. However, in addition to such advantages there are many disadvantages of such type of marketing; the Electronic Marketing has deleted the privacy of the consumer, because all of his movements through the Internet have been divulged and under control, in addition to lack of exclusive security through the Internet. Accordingly, many losses equally occurred to the customer and the merchant due to such acts of hackers who reveal the information and credit cards details. In addition, the Electronic Marketing caused many merchants, agents and monopolists to be vanquished because it gave the chance for direct communications between the producer and the consumer without passing through them; as such, many of such merchants have been yielded away from the way of this new technology. The Electronic Marketing was able to cause an upset down in many concepts and standards of economic science that have existed for so many years. Doors are still open for every new in this assumption and endless world as there are no limits that can stop such human ambition.

Advantages and Disadvantages of Group Decision-Making May 30 2020 Essay from the year 2010 in the subject Sociology - Individual, Groups, Society, grade: 1.1, Central Queensland University, course: Creative Arts Administration, language: English, comment: Grade has been converted from Australian (29/30) to German (1.1), abstract: Group decision-making is a process where an assembly of people convene to analyse problems or situations, evaluate alternative actions and reach solutions. Decisions may concern the judgement of a particular course of action, how best to solve a problem or the determination of the direction or magnitude of work ahead performed by teams or individuals. Deciding the best course of action can range in perplexity, depending on the effectiveness of how that group functions, the quality of alternatives that are generated, the amount of access to correct and adequate information and their understanding of the problem. Where time is of the essence and also befits the personification of money, it is customary for a business or organisation to engage in Group Decision-Making processes in the attempt to effectively and efficiently solve problems. Though some methods are more time-consuming some others. The group leader usually reserves judgement on which method is used in the Group Decision-Making process, because if one assembled a group to make a decision on what method should be used, what method would one use to decide? And so on one would ramble in an infinite loop. And if the group ever assembled without a leader, who's idea was it for the group to assemble in the first instance? So the first advantage or disadvantage of a group decision would be how effective its leader is in managing the process, which can either be a solution in itself or it can be a problem. Though the greatest problem of all seems to be time.

The Future of Education. Advantages and Disadvantages of Online Education Oct 15 2021 Academic Paper from the year 2018 in the subject Pedagogy - Common Didactics, Educational Objectives, Methods, , language: English, abstract: This work focuses on Future Education and its characteristics. Thereby it will have a closer look at the advantages and disadvantages of Online Education. Over the past several decades the rapid technological advancement has had an impact on every aspect of human life and education has been one of the most important beneficiaries of this phenomenon. However as technology continues to take a central role in today's society, educational experts and professionals have raised concerns on the possible impacts that this will have not just on the system but also on the students and the society as whole. Some critics arguing that technology would in the future replace human intelligence. This, they argue would be as a result of the assumption of control by technologies over a considerable measure of undertakings and capacities that educators have been educating their students in the conventional education system. It is the position of this paper that despite the rise of technology and the central role it is now playing in the society, Education faces no threat, rather with the changing world; technology will only be driving force behind the restructuring of the education model as it aligns itself to the global changes.

M., course: Handel, language: English, abstract: Multi-channel distribution, hereafter referred to as the larger literary spread of the term multi - channel retailing ("MCR"), is a marketing strategy that is indispensable in today's retail landscape. At the same time, the linking of different distribution channels is not a new phenomenon and in practice has been practiced long before the invention of the Internet, e.g. in the form of catalog shipping and stationary sales, successfully practiced. (cf. Rittinger, 2014) The topic has first through the commercialization of the Internet gained new relevance and has become the explosive proliferation of smartphones ultimately one of the key topics of today's sales development history. (cf. Schramm - Klein, 2012) In the present elaboration of this topic, the phenomenon from the manufacturer's and the customer's point of view will be examined disadvantages of this distribution system concept. First of all, the fundamentals necessary for understanding, beginning with the definition of the term and its conceptual delineation are explained and in the course of this, the difference between the integration and the separation of the distribution channels in an "MCR" system is discussed. What are the main advantages and disadvantages of global free trade? Does it exist in practice? Jan 26 2020 Essay from the year 2001 in the subject Politics - International Politics - Topic: Globalization, Political Economics, grade: ECTS-grade: B = 2, University of Leeds (Institute for Politics and International Studies), course: North-south Linkages, 18 entries in the bibliography, language: English, abstract: The posed question comprises three different issues which have to be investigated. The first thing, implied in this question is, whether or not there are more arguments for or against global free trade both in theory and in practice. Secondly, we have to ask, if real global free trade is being practised in our times. The third issue deals with the question of how we should go on in the future. Is global free trade worth being expanded or should we better tend to protectionism? In this essay I will argue that although free trade is said to cause some unintentional side-effects it is a better way of achieving economic and social development than protectionism. Most of the problems concerning free trade only exist due to the fact, that protectionist barriers set up by Northern countries still disturb a real free trade system and therefore constitute a disadvantage for developing countries. I first want to work out the opportunities and benefits but also the challenges and problems of global free trade, as they are seen in our times. I will refer to the question of gains and losses for both, industrialised and developing countries. Firstly, I want to look at economic effects and will then turn to political and environmental issues and to the linking of the recent terror attacks with free trade. I will then ask the question how free trade is being practised today. Finally, I will sum up my results and will conclude with answering the question whether free trade is worth a greater expansion in the future or not.
